Canadian, British Forces Linked For Attack on Key Base of Caen

of Caen and 10 miles west of the Orne estuary. Bernieres was captured, along with a number of other places.

The main weight of Marshal E. Rommel's counterattack was centred around Caen. It included considerable amounts of armor which the Germans had moved up well forward.

CANADIAN ARMOR

Front reports said Canadian tanks had been in several small engagements as they advanced from the beach, where they fought for five hours at H-hour, and yesterday Canadian and German tanks fought a savage battle on the perimeter of the beachhead.

Infantry rode on the tanks, and the advancing Canadian and German tanks suddenly upon a German armored force. Both sides opened fire and the troops took up positions in the fields. After a hot exchange of gunfire, the enemy withdrew, the reports said.

German prisoners have been taken in sizeable numbers, the spokesmen added, the total now running into four figures.

The weather, one of the most serious problems of the invasion, took a slight turn for the better today, the wind kicking in briskly from the southwest.

REPORT SEA ARMADA

The Germans reported that a great naval armada of several hundred vessels sailed eastward past Cherbourg toward the assault area early today, evidently to pour powerful reinforcements into the beachhead.

Nazi reports also said an armored spearhead of German troops, No. 20, 20 miles southwest of Bayeux and half way across the peninsula, had been ordered to advance toward the German front line.

At supreme headquarters here it was revealed that American forces, hitting hard and grimly, had struck across the 20-mile stretch of the Cherbourg-Carenten highway at several places.

NEW PHASE SOON

The German DNB news agency said a new phase of the invasion can be expected within the next few days, possibly in the Dunkerque-Orne region where the Belgian-French coast, said Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery had 20 divisions in southeast England and others to the north which were likely to be used in strong coordinated operations in the Channel area.

Allied officers described the troops as "of good quality and fighting magnificently."

Large amounts of heavy equipment were also being used, and were regarded as in good condition to repel the German attacks which must be expected and to exploit their gains steadily in the face of any opposition which can be anticipated at present.

GERMAN ADMISSION

A Berlin dispatch to the Stockholm newspaper Aftonbladet said German military reports admitted their forces were retreating under the pressure of Allied reinforcements and attacks from the west, and that the German forces were "making progress in all sectors despite further reinforcement of German armor," but did not disclose the extent of the Allied penetration of the German defenses.

Canadian forces alone were credited with capturing at least 100 German tanks in a southward drive across the Bayeux-Carenten stretch of the main Cherbourg-Carenten highway. Landings continued on both the British-French and British-Canadian beachheads, and by-passed enemy strong points were being reduced steadily.

JUNCTION FEARED

The Berlin dispatch to the Stockholm Aftonbladet said the German feared a linking of the two beachheads—the British-Canadians between Bayeux and a point west of the Orne estuary and the American between Carenten and Cherbourg—was imminent.

Such a junction, the dispatch would make the Nazis' situation "very difficult" and perhaps force the abandonment of Cherbourg.

The German-controlled Scandinavian telegraph bureau, also in a Berlin dispatch, reported that German troops had been wrenched from Gen. Sir Bernard

L. Montgomery's forces were approaching St. Lo, 20 miles inland, after violent battles six miles south of Bayeux and at the Orne river, southeast of Bayeux.

ADMIT ADVANCES

The German communiqué said that tank columns had advanced southwest and six miles west of Bayeux. It also acknowledged that American forces near St. Mere-Eglise, seven miles northwest of Carenten on the main road to Cherbourg, had "gained ground in the face of stubborn resistance."

Radio Vichy reported "new massive landings" by Allied paratroops and glider-borne forces near Falaise, some 20 miles south of Caen, and the Nazi DNB agency estimated that the arrival of additional reinforcements by sea and air, and the last night had boosted Allied strength in Normandy to more than 150,000 divisions, possibly 240,000 men.

A total of 10 German divisions—infantry, armor, and the Nazi DNB agency indicated these steadily were being reinforced by railway and highway despite day and night Allied aerial attacks on enemy communications.

LESSENING WIND AID

Diminishing winds speeded further the landing of ships of French, Canadian, and American equipment on both the British-Canadian and American beachheads, the reports said, and the miles of the coastline between Cherbourg and Le Havre, the latter 20 miles more than 100 miles from Paris.

However, clouds that descended to 200 ft. over the beachhead, hampered air support of the troops, and the morning rain, during the early formations of daylight raiders to isolated tank columns.

The outcome of the American attack on Carenten, at the point of the peninsula, was a long way away, but the reports said, the fate of Cherbourg itself, the main harbor on the French coast, was a direct link to Paris.

The loss of Carenten and the highway would leave the German position in the Channel area, and any roads over which to withdraw from the port and at the same time would leave the way for an American thrust across the 20-mile neck of the peninsula, which would be a direct link to Paris.

spokesman for Eisenhower said they now were receiving a regular stream of reinforcements.

The beachhead was considered in excellent condition and the other, where going had been slow, improved steadily, the spokesman said. While the tank columns had advanced, the configuration of the shoreline had handicapped the original landings.

AERIAL SUPPORT

All kinds of Allied planes, from four-engine bombers to single-engine fighters, continued to support the invasion despite deteriorating weather conditions late yesterday and last night. Some Allied planes were believed using airstrips in France.

Rocket firing ships attacked German tank batts in the English channel yesterday and left one in a sinking condition. Another one was sunk and three others damaged or sunk off the French coast, Belgian coast Wednesday night.

Some German coastal batteries fired at the British Navy's convoys yesterday, but were silenced by Allied warships.

W. A. Fraser (L.-Northumberland) who expressed concern for public confidence in the banks, said a bank manager had told him a customer had withdrawn $100,000 because of a report he had read of committee disclosures.

Mr. Fraser (L.-Vancouver) and Mr. Slaght, the two members most insistent on disclosure of the committee's findings, said they would not be satisfied until the basis for such a conclusion being given by the committee.

Mr. McGee said that with their published reserves, their inner reserves, which would be published, with the supervision of the Bank of Canada and with the assurance of the Bank of Canada would stand behind them in an emergency, Canadian chartered banks would not be in a position to meet their obligations as much or more security than they desired.

URGES DECENTRALIZATION

A decentralization of credit was desirable.

Mr. Blackmore said the effect of the loan act could better be judged when the government introduced proposed legislation to set a floor under farm prices. There was no indication that prices would be high enough to allow the farmer a reasonable living after paying production costs.

The government had given no assurance that it would introduce legislation providing for the purchase of all the Canadian farmer could produce.

The resolution was adopted and the House gave first reading to the bill.

Most "Vital" Stage Of Invasion Over

Relative to The Edmonton Bulletin

OTTAWA, June 9.—The "most vital stage" of the European invasion of Europe has passed, Defence Minister J. L. Ralston told the House of Commons yesterday as he disclosed that Canadian troops have advanced "as far northward as any other."

While the most vital stage has been passed, the senior defence minister, there was no reason to be "lulled into a false sense of security," because there would be trying times ahead for the Allied forces.

The beachhead has been gained at "Less cost than we dared to expect," said Col. Ralston. Canadian troops have been "moderate," but he warned that there might be "bad or perhaps even shocking news" from the invasion front.

Col. Ralston paid tribute to the news agencies and declared that the news from the front is received by the public as quickly as it is received at national defence headquarters.

For that reason he didn't feel it was necessary to give a daily report to parliament on the progress of the Canadian troops. The plan and the public, he said, can rely on the news received through the regular channels.

ABANDON TARGUINA

A German communiqué said Nazi forces had abandoned Targuina, seven miles above Civitavecchia.

A British United Press eyewitness report received from Civitavecchia disclosed that the port was almost completely wrecked by Allied bombers.

Further inland, British and Canadian troops were reported to have rolled through Capranica, 30 miles northwest of Rome on the coast, and to have taken 10 miles further east another army, pushing down from northern Castella and pushed on along Highway 3.

The two armies threatened both Viterbo and Terni, two key junctions on the main highway lines leading down from northern Italy.

After Allied units were reported mopping up, isolated German armor near Lago Bracciano, more than 40 miles inland, was reported to be preparing to turn and fight.

On the east bank of the Tiber and in the Rome area, however, the Nazi 10th army corps was reported to be withdrawing, leaving its line of retreat with mines and demolitions and maintaining a strong rear guard to hold the pursuing Eighth Army.

Legion Urges Full Program Rehabilitation

By LORNE BRUCE

VANCOUVER, June 8.—(CP).—A rehabilitation plan embracing varied suggestions for improving the dominion's economic structure and stressing protection of war veterans was approved yesterday at the concluding session of the biennial convention of the Canadian Legion's Dominion Command.

After completing study of the plan, deciding to hold the next convention in Quebec City in 1945 and installing officers, the convention closed leaving a heavy backlog of unfinished business including 42 printed resolutions and the reports of the Imperial Division and the Soldier Settlement Committee.

TO BE CONSIDERED

Assurances that soldier settlement questions would be fully considered was given when after extended discussion of that phase of the rehabilitation plan, it was decided that provincial commands could make recommendations later and these would be included in the final report submitted to the federal government.

During the prolonged debate on soldier settlement delegates had urged co-operative ownership of farm machinery, that settlers be allowed to take up city properties under the scheme so they could obtain benefit of civic services and that the land be revalued every five years.

Before adjourning delegates passed a motion demanding that important reports such as rehabilitation be submitted to conventions before elections. Prof. C. B. Lumsden of Dartmouth, N.S., who presided over the rehabilitation report, was an unsuccessful candidate for Dominion first vice-president.

A Dominion provincial conference to eliminate any possible constitutional obstacles in the way of a full rehabilitation program was suggested in the 7500-word report which said rehabilitation is the primary responsibility of the federal government but that provinces are better fitted to co-ordinate and direct the work.

HEAR LAFLECHE
Delegates also heard Maj.-Gen. L. R. Lafleche, national war service minister, urge all Legion members to work towards elimination of racial discussion in the Dominion.

Two motions were introduced immediately after Gen. Lafleche spoke contending that the convention did not agree with his statement that Canada has reached as near a total war effort as was possible for a country so far removed from battle. Both were ruled out of order by convention chairman A. E. (Jack) Moore of Winnipeg who said the Legion's attitude had been adequately expressed in previous convention actions.

The rehabilitation plan urged that wartime controls be retained so long as they are necessary.

Clash in Debate War Appropriation Bill Providing $3,650,000,000 Is Adopted by Commons

By DARC O'DONNELL

OTTAWA, June 8.—(CP).—The Commons yesterday unanimously adopted the war appropriation bill providing $3,650,000,000 for war expenditures during the present fiscal year.

Only brief debate, highlighted by a clash between J. F. Pouliot (L-Temiscouata) and P. L. Sinclair (L-Vancouver North) preceded second reading of the bill, its passage through committee of the whole, and finally its adoption.

The bill itself gave effect to the war appropriation resolution which had been discussed by the House at length since it was introduced last Feb. 11. Under the resolution the House discussed the war estimates of all government departments.

INVESTIGATE CLASHES
Justice Minister St. Laurent told the House that the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, the Quebec provincial police and the Montreal municipal police were investigating the causes of recent street fights in Montreal and district between "tool-lauers" and service personnel.

Mr. Pouliot's mention of a recruiting broadcast made Wednesday night by Brig. James Mess, deputy adjutant-general, led to his exchange with P. L. Sinclair, who recently returned from service as an administrative officer of the R.C.A.F. overseas.

(Brig. Mess, who is in charge of recruiting, said in the broadcast over the national network of the CBC that some young men were not joining the armed forces because they preferred to consider themselves essential behind the lines or in industry.)

"If everybody follows the unwise advice of Brig. Mess there will be nobody left to look after the farm or industry," said Mr. Pouliot.

P. L. Sinclair: "The honorable member for Temiscouata will still be here and still taking."

Mr. Pouliot said he was "second to none in the help I can bring the armed forces in my humble capacity as a member of parliament."

P. L. Sinclair: "Second to none in wasting time."

G. A. Cruickshank (L-Fraser Valley) interjected: "That is all you care about, being re-elected. What do you care whether he is re-elected or not?"

"You are the biggest single waste of time in the House of Commons," said P. L. Sinclair.

Mr. Pouliot: "The honorable gentleman's laughter sounds false."

"AS FALSE AS TEARS"
P. L. Sinclair: "As false as your tears."

(Mr. Pouliot broke down and wept in the Commons Tuesday while urging the government to do something for the starving children of Europe.)

When Mr. Pouliot said his country had supplied the largest number of men for the army of any rural district in Canada, P. L. Sinclair said:

"And the largest number of draft dodgers undoubtedly."

Mr. Pouliot said he resented the remark. "I do not care what was said about me, but I resent profoundly what has been said by the honorable gentleman and I will not tolerate it," he said.

Temiscouata who had reduced his efforts to waste the time of parliament and obstruct legislation in this house."

Discover French People Solidly Behind de Gaulle

By RICHARD D. MACMILLAN
Representing the Combined Allied Press

WITH ALLIED FORCES IN FRANCE, June 8.—(BUP)—All the French people with whom I have talked in the countryside, in the villages and in the townships of the liberated area are surprised at the idea that there is any difference of opinion among the French as to the support of General Charles De Gaulle.

Leaves for East

L. E. W. Smith, R.C.A.F., has left for Eastern Canada after spending two weeks' leave with his wife, the former Miss Joyce Short. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Smith live at 1152 22nd street. L. E. Smith attended Queen Alexandra and Garrison High Schools and was employed at Johnstone Walker Ltd. at the time of his enlistment in September, 1942. He trained at No. 1 Wireless school, Montreal, and has been stationed at Lethbridge for the last eight months. Two brothers are also in the air force. P. O. Harold I. Smith was recently reported missing overseas and Sgt. C. D. Smith is stationed at Edmonton.

Will Air Dispute At Early Meeting

The dispute between rival packing plant unions, Local 76 Packing Plant Employees' union, A. F. of L. and Local 233, United Packinghouse Workers of America, C.I.O. affiliate, will be heard at the inquiry meeting at 2 p.m. Tuesday at the court house. Control of the bargaining agency with the Canada Packers Company Ltd., at Edmonton, is at stake.

Members of the conciliation and investigation board established to handle the dispute are: J. V. Cairns, C.S. acting for Canada Packers, the Rev. C. J. Foran, I.P.W.A. representative, and H. H. Parlee, C.R. chairman.

WITH CANADIAN FORCES IN FRANCE, June 8.—(BUP)—All through the British and Canadian sector in Normandy, there is evidence of the growing strength of the second front coastal strip.

Before the Magistrate

Arrested by a department store detective as he allegedly placed a number of articles into a shopping bag, about 11:30 a.m. Thursday, Mrs. Annie Kondrjuk, Edmonton, was placed under arrest as she left the store. Arraigned before Magistrate A. I. Miller K.C. Thursday afternoon, she pleaded guilty to the theft of a brooch, some earrings, four pairs of women's stockings, four aprons, two pairs of children's overalls, two sweaters, a suit of men's underwear, five pairs of baby socks and 37 skeins of art silk.

Total value of the goods was $152.12, the magistrate was told. The latter informed that the accused was the mother of small children, told her that for this reason only was she not being sent to jail with out the option of a fine. The penalty was $50 or 30 days. Restitution of the goods was ordered.

Wilfred Magee, Fort Saskatchewan, pleaded guilty to using purple gasoline in his car. He admitted that his hired man had put that particular fuel into the tank. He was fined $10 and costs, and the order that he be imprisoned for 14 days.

Fast driving earned penalties of $15 and costs for Nick P. Meinhart of Redway and McLenon of Edmonton; $10 and costs for George K. Leake of Lacombe, and costs for Orval Bissett, William C. Hooley and Ed Hurlbut of Edmonton; $10 and costs for Zander of Tomahawk and C. Fleming of R.E.S. Edmonton.

Carter of Morrisville paid a similar fine for driving at an unreasonable speed, together with a penalty of $5 and costs for driving without a driver's license.

Cliff Kendrick, Edmonton, pleaded guilty to two counts. The failing to keep to the right of the centre line he was assessed $5 and costs for driving with faulty lights. A further fine of $3 or five days was imposed.

P. C. Cleven, Edmonton, was assessed $5 and costs for unlawfully carrying a passenger in the cab of his truck. John Bartko, also of Edmonton, was fined $5 and costs for failing to stop before entering a main highway. Albert J. Cyre, another Edmontonian, pleaded guilty to operating a vehicle without a tail-light, and was assessed $5 and costs.

Dan Kaval and Dan Liffman, Edmonton, charged with 'joy riding' before Magistrate A. I. Miller, K.C. Friday morning, pleaded guilty to taking David Hickey's auto, without the owner's consent, were fined $50 and costs. The alternative was three months' imprisonment.

Kaval and Liffman saw the keys to the auto as it stood outside an Edmonton hotel, drove it away, got stuck in the mud, pushed it out and then abandoned it because it would not start again. The court was told.

Frank Wear, Wainwright, placed on suspended sentence in March for failing to have a valid in his possession. Charged also with theft and breach of the national registration regulations, he was remanded on three counts to June 16. It was understood a further charge was in the course of investigation by city detectives.

Gordon W. and John J. Busche, who arrived in the city from Vancouver in May of this year, both pleaded guilty to vagrancy, and were remanded to June 16. After working for a short time in a local packing plant, the accused men left the job. Bove said he was released from jail in Vancouver after serving a six-month term for being in possession of stolen property. Busche stated that he had served three months in the same prison for the same offence. Both accused, said Mr. Miller, were 'quite undesirable' around here.

Your Baby And Mine

By MYRTLE MEYER ELDER

We cannot expect a growing child to refrain from climbing, jumping, yelling, running and throwing. These are the normal and exciting ways in which to use the new muscle strength and it is up to the parent to provide harmless and legitimate ways in which to exercise these capacities.

Mrs. D. B. has a 16-month-old daughter who is a climber. "I have a gate to keep her out of the kitchen," she writes, "but she has the freedom of the other rooms. She gets her walks and climbs twice a day, when weather permits, but her climbing takes her from chair to table to a ceiling high peak. I've tried rearranging the chairs or tipping them over, but this doesn't stop her.

I don't like to let her anywhere for people go from faint to shivering the precarious positions she gets into. Despite my scolding, whipping and very close watching she goes merrily on. She doesn't know the meaning of fear.

"Outside of that one activity she is a happy, healthy, generally content baby. I am sure my hair will turn gray if I will die of the shock if she doesn't stop climbing. She has been walking since ten months and climbing since twelve."

Because your house has no stairs she is denied this splendid climbing exercise enjoyed by most children of this age. Instead of trying to curb her climbing, which you have admitted is useless, encourage climbing in safer places.

Why can't Daddy build some fascinating steps by nailing some boxes together? These can be put in some safe place so that she can entertain herself climbing up and down them until she gets this out of her system.

Or else, buy one of those ready-made apparatus which contain ladders, rungs, etc., and set it firmly in cement in the ground. You can make some of these with a few boards and nails. It's amazing how acrobatic some small children can be given an opportunity to swing and hang and climb.

These muscles have to be used and since chairs are not fit to topple over and climbing on them is not a good practice, make some way for her to climb that is both safe and sane.

ANSWER: Well, if you are just going to make the kind of a husband that your letter indicates, I hope you will refrain from making them for the girl's sake as well as your own. Evidently you still belong to the old school of thought on the subject that pictures a wife as a household drudge and nothing else. You seem to begrudge women even the tools of their trade that make their work easier, yet I wonder if you would like to do without all the labor-saving devices that you use in your work? How would you like to pound things with a hammer instead of using a screwdriver, and having an electrical hammer do it for you? How would you like to stand and strew under heavy loads instead of pulling a lever and have a crane save your back?

You say you have two days off a week in which you have nothing to do but to observe how trifling women are. When you were making these observations, did you notice any mothers with children and fathers taking care of their own? If you work two days every week and do nothing but loaf, No wife and mother who has to do her own housework and her own baby-hood has any free time for herself.

The old proverb says that one half of the world doesn't know how the other half lives. It is a pity that all the bachelors and the men who are so critical of wives and mothers can't substitute for them now and then and find out how much work and thought it takes to keep a family comfortable.

SECRET MARRIAGE. DEAR DOROTHY DIX: I am a senior in high school and have gone with a boy, a student, in the service, for almost four years. When we came home on leave we were secretly married. My mother has always been opposed to my even seeing your letter.

Please allow a week or ten day for delivery.

DOROTHY DIX SAYS

A Mother's Work Is Tedious, Never Ending

Bachelors Critical of Wives Should Live in Homes Where There is a Mother to Learn About Effort

DEAR DOROTHY DIX: I work only five days a week so I am home two full days, and this gives me the opportunity to observe not only my mother but also the women of the neighborhood doing their daily duties. I see little signs of the hardships which they complain. They have washing machines, sweepers and vacuum cleaners, devices, and their lives are far easier than they are. I see my mother's time and energy not married with the intention of staying at home any more than they are yours. They always want to do something.

Five or ten years ago have learned the lessons of life by observing others, and I believe that if you would like to do so before I marry instead of afterwards, I believe in the present-day marriage for a man who will study it at first hand. NUFF SAID.

You say you have two days off a week in which you have nothing to do but to observe how trifling women are. When you were making these observations, did you notice any mothers with children and fathers taking care of their own? If you work two days every week and do nothing but loaf, No wife and mother who has to do her own housework and her own baby-hood has any free time for herself.

The old proverb says that one half of the world doesn't know how the other half lives. It is a pity that all the bachelors and the men who are so critical of wives and mothers can't substitute for them now and then and find out how much work and thought it takes to keep a family comfortable.

SECRET MARRIAGE. DEAR DOROTHY DIX: I am a senior in high school and have gone with a boy, a student, in the service, for almost four years. When we came home on leave we were secretly married. My mother has always been opposed to my even seeing your letter.

Please allow a week or ten day for delivery.

DOROTHY DIX SAYS

A Mother's Work Is Tedious, Never Ending

Bachelors Critical of Wives Should Live in Homes Where There is a Mother to Learn About Effort

DEAR DOROTHY DIX: I work only five days a week so I am home two full days, and this gives me the opportunity to observe not only my mother but also the women of the neighborhood doing their daily duties. I see little signs of the hardships which they complain. They have washing machines, sweepers and vacuum cleaners, devices, and their lives are far easier than they are. I see my mother's time and energy not married with the intention of staying at home any more than they are yours. They always want to do something.

Five or ten years ago have learned the lessons of life by observing others, and I believe that if you would like to do so before I marry instead of afterwards, I believe in the present-day marriage for a man who will study it at first hand. NUFF SAID.

ANSWER: Well, if you are just going to make the kind of a husband that your letter indicates, I hope you will refrain from making them for the girl's sake as well as your own. Evidently you still belong to the old school of thought on the subject that pictures a wife as a household drudge and nothing else. You seem to begrudge women even the tools of their trade that make their work easier, yet I wonder if you would like to do without all the labor-saving devices that you use in your work? How would you like to pound things with a hammer instead of using a screwdriver, and having an electrical hammer do it for you? How would you like to stand and strew under heavy loads instead of pulling a lever and have a crane save your back?

You say you have two days off a week in which you have nothing to do but to observe how trifling women are. When you were making these observations, did you notice any mothers with children and fathers taking care of their own? If you work two days every week and do nothing but loaf, No wife and mother who has to do her own housework and her own baby-hood has any free time for herself.

The old proverb says that one half of the world doesn't know how the other half lives. It is a pity that all the bachelors and the men who are so critical of wives and mothers can't substitute for them now and then and find out how much work and thought it takes to keep a family comfortable.

On-the-Spot Photos Show Allied Landings Under Fire

Under cover of naval shelling, Allied infantrymen went through a beach to make the first landings on French beach. The night is a transport from which the troops embarked. Note the exploding shell on the shore in the left background. Thousands of men are being poured ashore as reinforcements.

Weather Cuts Aerial Support For Invaders

By WALTER CRONKITE
LONDON, June 9 (AP)—Stormy weather which cut off the Allied air umbrella over the French invasion front today after RAF and RCAF night bombers, tossed destructively at five big transport hubs keeping the movement of German troops and supplies to the Normandy battle area.

Heavy clouds and rain which hampered the Allied air effort also shattered the relatively small Nazi aerial operations.

The RAF bomber command used its Halifax and Lancaster heavy bombers flanked by light Mosquitos for night raids on the rail and highway centers behind the German front.

Amendments to Act First Reading Is Given Bill Providing for Service Vote

OTTAWA, June 9.—(CP)—The Commons last night gave first reading to a bill providing for voting by members of the armed services at home and overseas in wartime general elections and for proxy voting on behalf of prisoners of war and service personnel interned in neutral countries.

Y.M.C.A. Head

The bill was sponsored by State Secretary McLarty and follows recommendations of a special committee on service voting. It contained amendments to the Electoral Act.

It would extend the franchise to Indians and other persons disfranchised by reason of race who have served or are serving in the present war. This was also done with respect to those who served in the First Great War.

DISFRANCHISE JAPS
Persons of Japanese racial origin would be disfranchised in all parts of Canada. Previously they were disfranchised only when living in a province where they were barred by law from voting at provincial elections as in British Columbia.

In order to allow time for the counting of service votes along with civilian votes, in each constituency returning officers would be directed to add up the votes cast earlier on the night of the day after polling.

In order to allow time for the counting of service votes, in each constituency returning officers would be directed to add up the votes cast earlier on the night of the day after polling.

ALL TO GET VOTE
The bill would give voting regulations attached to the bill all men and women members of the armed forces, the merchant navy and the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, including those under 21 who are serving in the armed forces of Canada prior to service, would be entitled to vote. The group also includes members of the Corps of Canadian Fire fighters and persons engaged in the merchant navy in connection with Canadian forces under Red Cross or St. John Ambulance Association auspices.

Persons serving outside Canada who are British subjects, registered in Canada before taking their duties and are 21 years of age when they were first called upon to serve, the Y.M.C.A. Knights of Columbus Canadian War Huts or Veterans Canadian War Services, were listed as war service electors.

Reserve army units absent from their ordinary place of residence for emergency training, to vote as war service electors. They must be 21 years of age.

TERRITORIES MADE
Canada was divided into voting territories for war service votes and provision was made for territories outside Canada. Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta were made a territory with headquarters at Edmonton, and British Columbia with headquarters at Vancouver.

The United Kingdom was another with headquarters at London, and Newfoundland, with headquarters at St. John's. If at the time of an election, forces were in other countries where their votes could not be collected conveniently at any of these headquarters, other territories might be established by order-in-council.

The regulations also made provision for the appointment of special returning officers and scrutineers for each territory. Votes would be taken in units, before commissioned officers appointed for the purpose by commanding officers.

The president of war voting regulations required the chief electoral officer to obtain a list of Canadian prisoners and notify each returning officer of the next-of-kin of prisoners who were resident in his constituency. The returning officers then would be required to issue proxy certificates to these next-of-kin who then would vote on behalf of the prisoners.

West Wall Attack
Invasion High Spot
LONDON, June 9.—(CP)—Canadian staff officers told correspondents in France the Normandy battle was going strategically inland but the high spot still was the work of the troops who smashed the German line in the invasion area.

The British Army's advance in critical assault, Charles G. Heaters News Agency reported last night from the invasion area. Everybody still was talking about the battle through the west wall Tuesday, Lynch added.

Butter Position
Is Now Improved
OTTAWA, June 9.—(CP)—Marked improvement in Canada's butter supply position during May was reported yesterday by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics, with production for that month moving up to 3,232,842 pounds, compared with approximately 1,750,000 pounds in the corresponding month of last year. The accumulative production of creamery butter during the January-May period totaled 30,662,500 pounds, 65 per cent less than that reported a year ago, when the total was 93,844,824.

PRIVATE BREGER ABROAD
The private Breger, who was reported to have been in the North African campaign and played a leading part in most of its major events.

The British held Mers Matruh for several days, gaining time for strengthening the Alamein line. It was instrumental in cracking the Mers Matruh and in Sicily captured Catania and Taormina.

Chamber Campaign
Is Warmly Praised
The venerable-old edition campaign of the Alberta Junior Chamber of Commerce has been a valuable contribution to the whole cause of public health," Dr. H. H. McLeod, minister of health said Friday.

The drive has made people more health conscious generally and it has stimulated interest in the health service. The major effort of course, will be in the prevention and control of the venereal diseases.

Praise for the campaign of the Edmonton Junior Chamber of Commerce was given by the Hon. C. M. Macdonald, director of the Social Hygiene Division of the Health League of Canada, here from Toronto to survey what has been done. Mr. Macdonald, the Edmonton president, in support of the department of public health and Health League, had been outstanding.

Continue Subsidies
On Berries for Jam
OTTAWA, June 9.—(CP)—The agriculture department announced last night that subsidies to producers of berries manufactured into jam have been renewed for 1944.

The subsidy rate will be continued at three cents a pound for raspberries, blueberries, gooseberries and currants, the department said. The strawberry subsidy will be continued at three cents a pound in eastern Canada and six cents a pound in the western provinces where production has declined sharply since removal in 1942 of Japanese farmers from the coast area.

Chinese Gain
CHUNGKING, June 9.—(AP)—Chinese troops have occupied part of the Burma triangle of Lungling, second most important Japanese base in Yunnan province, and have made advances against the principal enemy base of Teng-chang. The Chinese command announced last night.

Valparaiso Youth, Now in Edmonton Came 6,000 Miles to Join R.C.A.F.

Mid-day vistas, when the business world ceases humming for a brief few hours, is a custom of South American and Central American countries which one misses in Edmonton, according to AC. Peter Johnson, R.C.A.F. stationed at No. 3 "A" Depot here. Eighteen years of age, Peter came all the way from Chile to join the R.C.A.F.

Born in Chile, the young airman's home is just outside of Valparaiso. His father and mother are both from England and the former is connected with an Argentine oil company. Recently Mr. Johnson was transferred by the firm to San Francisco.

ELISTED AT COAST
Peter flew from Valparaiso to San Francisco, and then took the bus to Vancouver where he enlisted. In March he was sent to Edmonton to obtain his preliminary training.

He likes Canada and especially Edmonton, but finds the weather cool even at this time of the year. He finds a difference in the business day here, and the business day in his home country. Before the war, because of the heat at mid-day, streets were empty when men and women stole quick trips to the bathroom or to a shop, not only late in the afternoon.

Now, because of a speed up in industry a sort of daylight saving time has been adopted, and the streets are busy from 7:30 a.m. and ends at about 3 p.m.

The foods in Canada are not as good as they were in Chile. The Chilean people like savory foods, trimmed with lots of onions, garlic and spices.

Peter can speak Spanish as fluently as English. Chile is a dual language country, he said, and one learns both languages from the cradle.

SAW GERMAN BLITZ
He was in England in 1939 at the outbreak of the war, to attend Bishop's Stortford College, on the border of Hertfordshire. For six months he saw the blitz and suffered the hardships of war. Returning to Chile, his father sent him to St. George's College in Buenos Aires, from which he was graduated.

Chile has a president, Juan Antonio Rios. The country has various political parties just like Canada, the airman said. It is somewhat of a neutral country with respect to the war, although lately all Nazis have been interned. A family of Nazis lived next door to the Johnsons at Valparaiso, and Peter laughed as he told how they would "hit Hitler" early in the morning and at various intervals throughout the day.

The earthquakes are a little heart reading, he said, but one gets used to them. Peter has travelled all through South and Central America, and the British West Indies. He would like to be a pilot in the air force, although lately the R.C.A.F. doctors have found that because of a fall on a sports field in Chile, one knee is not quite up to par. Because of this he may be sent back to his South American home.

Power Unit Ready
The first of four 36,000 horse power units of the Kootenay Engineering company's dam at Brilliant, 30 miles north of here began turning over Wednesday when the final gate was closed. Power from the dam which has been under construction for the last two years, will eventually come to Trail via plants.
